

Mark the statements True or False

- 1 Tahlequah's behavior was not unusual.
True False
- 2 Charles Darwin argued that animals experience a wide range of emotions, including grief.
True False
- 3 Scientists have always projected human emotions onto other animals.
True False
- 4 Humans were once thought to be the only animals capable of thinking and feeling.
True False
- 5 Koko the gorilla did not show any distress when her kitten companion died.
True False
- 6 Eleanor the elephant's family did not visit her body after she died.
True False
- 7 Giraffes usually stop eating when they are grieving.
True False
- 8 Baboons who had lost a close relative had lower levels of stress hormones.
True False
- 9 Primate mothers do not show conflicting impulses towards their dead children.
True False
- 10 We need more research to understand the emotional landscapes of other animals.
True False