Set 10 - Feelings (Anger)

No	word/phrase	meaning
1	Anger	Her chin quivered again. I saw the anger in his dark eyes. He uttered a fierce growl. I was about to cry out in anger I balled my hands into fists and let out an angry growl. I growled under my breath "Grrrrrr!" I let out the loudest growl I ever growled Her face contorted with rage Her jaw was clenched and her glare was hostile. With bared teeth, she hissed at me like an angry serpent Even though her face was calm, her words radiated anger.

Set 11 - Feelings (Annoyance)

No	word/phrase	meaning
1	Annoyance	Annoying a sibling With an angry cry, She hoisted up one his favourite bags. She swung it in front of her, threatening to smack her brother with it. Annoyance due to envy I wanted to leap up, grab the fancy tiara-like hairband off 'Princess' Tabby's head, and wrap it around her neck! Annoyance due to frustration Mother snapped. She groaned and tossed up her hands I was met with a wall of icy stares from annoyed adults. She crossed her arms. From her expression, I could see she was annoyed. Her expression was pinched. Her lips pressed, resembling just a line. She looked annoyed. She pursed her lips, a slight furrow between her brows as she stared pointedly at me, and with an icy coldness, she hissed, "You're using my pen!"
