
Passage 2

Chiangklang Interesting Place

All people in my hometown are nice, kind and helpful because of we are Buddhists. We believe and follow in the Buddha's teachings. So one way we should do is taking care of Buddha image like a temple. It is the important thing for Buddhists.

There are three places worth visiting in Chiangklang. The first one is Wat Nong Daeang. It is situated at Ban Nong Deang in Chiangklang district. It was constructed in 1787 by Tai Lue and Thai Phuan people. The main Buddha image was built by Kruba Sittikarn. Its Viharn was built with the traditional Tai Lue architecture. Within the compound of the temple, there is a large shady terrace. The Chofa, gable with is the last part placed on the top's roof, engraved into the shape of Nokhastsadeeling (a mythical bird). The Tai Lue believe that it is a high-ranked animal from heaven. The main Buddha image is seated on Chukkachi base. It is decorated with a stucco Naga rolling itself around the Buddha image. It is believed that the Naga is a symbol of gracefulness, goodness and protector of Buddhism. Wat Nong Deang opens daily.

The second place is Wat Phra That Don Keaw. It is one the oldest temples in Chiangklang. It was established in 1929 in Pra That sub district. Every year people in Chiangklang organize a festival to pay respect to Phra That. Many people come to celebrate with happiness.

The last one is not a temple but also important. It is Shrine. The believe in the supernatural power of unseen and unproven phenomena is in the Thai blood. Even though most Thais are followed of Buddhism, Thai people are also pay respect to icons and symbolic figures of holy spirits.

This faith plays a great role of the daily life of Thai people in Chiangklang. Phayamai Shrine is one of those places of belief. Phayamai Shrine is located in Ban Sobkorn. Its original name of "Chao Poh Dong Khong" because the locates believe that the god protects Dong Khong and Sobkorn people. Phayamai Shrine is a place of worship that local people come to respect. The people bring food together with fresh flowers, joss sticks and candles. Believers feel that this shrine uplifts the spiritual strength. If anyone feels that luck is not on his/her side and wants to overcome his/her difficulty or has a great need for something, they will pray to the shrine to fulfill their wishes. In compound of this area there is “BO Nam Tip Phayamai” (magic pond). This water serves as drinking water for Chiangklang locals. Apart from that there are a fish conservative area and a public park for visitors. This area is a beautiful scene for relaxation.
