DEBRETT'S

GUIDE TO MODERN DILEMMAS

Debrett's is a British publisher which specializes in books about modern manners. For nearly 100 years, Debrett's Handbook has advised the British public on social etiquette, that is, how to behave in social situations. The Handbook receives more than 10,000 enquiries a year. Jo Bryant, editor of the Handbook, said, 'The number of enquiries we receive demonstrates that manners are still hugely important to people. The key is to always consider those around you.'

The most frequently asked questions have changed a lot over the years. In 1994, one of the most common questions was 'What should you do if you meet the Queen?', and in 2004, people asked, 'Is it acceptable to ask for money as a wedding present?'

Debrett's has given us a preview of its latest guide to good manners, which answers some of the questions that most trouble the British public today.

SOCIAL GREETING: KISSING

Many people are unclear on the subject of social kissing. Debrett's advice is that kissing is not appropriate in many professional situations. On the whole, it should only be used among friends, but not on a first meeting. An air kiss, without contact, may seem rude or impersonal, so very slight contact is best, but no sound effects are needed.

EATING AND PUTTING ON MAKE-UP ON PUBLIC TRANSPORT

According to Debrett's, you should avoid both. It's inconsiderate to eat smelly food in a closed environment, and applying make-up on public transport makes you appear disorganized.

RECLINING YOUR SEAT ON AEROPLANES

This is a common problem. Debrett's says that it's selfish to recline your seat during short daytime flights. When travelling by plane, always stay within your own space and don't monopolize the armrest. Also avoid kicking the back of the seat in front of you, or using it to help you stand up.

GIVING UP YOUR SEAT ON PUBLIC TRANSPORT

In a recent experiment, only 20% of London Tube passengers offered to give up their seat to a visibly pregnant woman. According to Debrett's, passengers should always offer to give up their seat to any individual who is pregnant, elderly, or clearly in need. It is important to remember, however, that it is also rude to aggressively decline the offer of a seat.

EATING BEFORE EVERYONE IS SERVED

The final question is one that we've all asked ourselves: is it rude to start eating at the table before everyone else has been served? Debrett's says that the simple answer is yes, unless the host or hostess (or in a restaurant, the other diners) gives their permission for people to start.

1-When shouldn't you greet someone with a kiss? Why?

2-What shouldn't you do on Public transport? Why?

3-Should you recline your seat in an areoplane? Why?

4-When should you give up your seat on a public transport? Why?

5-should you start eating before everyone is served? Why?
