Find and correct the mistakes. In one line there might be more than one mistake.

1	The world seems immutable, isn't it?
2	Yet today social inclusion can drive a wedge between people and trigger societal tension as it creates an 'us' vs 'them' mentality.
3	Most of people doesn't know that branding people as less human based on specific characteristics is not only unethical but also stop us from embracing our humanity.
4	We are all human, and their voice matters, regardless of where they come from or what ostracised community they belong to. Coming to different cities or country, we should always ask ourselves, what do the ostracized community want?
5	What can we do to make their lives better? Trees and forests which is the most important aspects of any human beings life, and we should all work together to protect them.
6	The debates concerning the issue take place on various level of social hierarchy, but we must all strive to create inclusion policies that embraces all excluded groups.
7	However, the difficulty of implementing these policies and gauging their effectiveness are still hindering progress.
8	Unfortunately, there are still people who aren't ready to change for the good and still complains that this is no longstanding prejudices towards to people.
9	Social inclusion play a crucial role in creating a better world, and many government have recognized this fact.
10	However, almost every announcement from my school are only available to a select few, which is not inclusive.
11	There is abundant evidence that allow us to create a more inclusive society, but we must all work together to make it happen.
12	And that is exactly why inclusion often equals making strides and fostering bonds among people not only in small societies but also all over the world.