Granted, one may claim that a _____ (đồng nhất) architectural style helps preserve the cultural and historical identity of a locality. Older homes often serve as visual markers of a community's heritage, offering a sense of _____ (cảm giác tiếp nối) and a link to the past. For instance, Hoian ancient town in Vietnam, _____ (bám sát) traditional architectural styles has contributed to the preservation of their unique identities. Its distinct charm and historical significance _____ (đóng vai trò nền tảng) increased tourism growth and increased local economy as a whole. However, in my opinion, _____ (luận điểm này chưa hoàn thiện). It is not always the case, especially in developing countries. Dwellers of Hanoi Old Quarter in Vietnam reported that their old houses are increasingly _____ (xuống cấp), subpar, and _____ (dễ bị ảnh hưởng bởi) natural disasters, which _____ (không thể) accommodate their bigger family sizes these days.

I hold a firm belief that individuals should have the freedom to design their homes according to their personal _____ (gu) and _____ (sở thích). On the individual level, this promotes creativity and allows residents to have a stronger emotional connection to their home. In _____ (ngoại ô) neighborhoods where homeowners have the liberty to design houses in their preferred styles, residents often feel a stronger sense of _____ (cảm giác thuộc về) to their homes and the community _____ (nói chung). This illustrates that allowing personal expression in architectural styles can lead to greater individual satisfaction and community engagement. On the governmental level, permitting diverse architectural styles can also stimulate the construction industry and promote innovation. When homeowners are not _____ (bó buộc/ giới hạn) by _____ (cứng nhắc) style guidelines, architects and
