Mary Grace Henry is an amazing teenager. While she was growing up in the USA, she learnt that education is very important. She read about the problems in some African countries, where many girls don't go to school. This is because their families are poor, and because some traditional cultures don't believe that education is important for girls. Mary Grace decided to raise money to send one girl to school.

At first, she wasn't sure how to raise money. Then, one day, her dad gave her a headband as a gift. The headband soon broke, and Mary Grace had an idea. She asked for a sewing machine for her birthday, and she started making headbands to sell at her school.

The headbands were popular, and Mary Grace soon raised enough money to achieve her first goal of sending one girl to school. She realised that she could do more, and decided to continue. She started a business called Reverse the Course. Soon her goal changed to sending 100 girls to school.

Reverse the Course became a successful business. It made and sold hundreds of headbands and other hair accessories. Students helped her with the sewing. All the money went to helping girls in Africa. In 2014, Mary Grace won an award for her work. She also travelled to Africa to meet some of the girls she helped. This made her even more determined to continue helping others. Reverse the Course helped 123 girls to receive an education before it ended in 2018.
