

Read the provided text titled "A Remarkable Tuesday in Bogotá" and fill in the missing phrasal verbs using the list given, matching them to the placeholders in the text based on their context and meaning.

Title: A Remarkable Tuesday in Bogotá

Once upon a time in the bustling city of Bogotá, there lived a student named Ana. Ana had a very interesting day of the week, and that day was Tuesday. You might be thinking, "Who enjoys Tuesdays?" Well, Ana did, and she had her reasons.

Every Tuesday, Ana and her friends would plan to eat out at a different restaurant in the city. It was their special tradition, and they loved trying new dishes and enjoying each other's company. Ana would often look at the menu with excitement, wondering what delicious meal she would choose that day.

Ana's adventure on Tuesday didn't stop there. After they finished their meal, they would get on the TransMilenio bus and get off at the local park, Simón Bolívar Park. There, they played their favorite game of frisbee. Ana would often try to pick up some impressive frisbee tricks from her friends.

As the sun began to set behind the Andes Mountains, Ana and her friends would get in their cars and drive to the nearby Monserrate hill. There, they could get out of their cars and enjoy a breathtaking view of the city's lights. It was the perfect spot to relax, and Ana would often wake up the photographer in her and capture the beauty of Bogotá at night.

And, of course, when the clock struck midnight, it was time to hang up the day's adventures and head back home. As she got into bed, Ana knew that her Tuesday had been a day filled with exciting moments, delicious food, and the joy of spending time with her friends.

As Ana prepared for bed, she had to put on her cozy pajamas and take off her shoes. She also had to turn off the lights and turn on her alarm clock to make sure she would wake up on time for her classes the next day.

Ana would often say, "Tuesdays aren't just for the middle of the week; they're for creating wonderful memories and living life to the fullest."