Filming dolphins

Tim Jones is a film-maker who has made lots of animal films for children. Dolphins are his favourite animal and he has travelled around the world filming them. He enjoys filming dolphins because they're not afraid of the cameras, so he can get very near to them.

Dolphins are difficult to find. Film-makers sometimes spend several days in the water looking for them, but Tim was lucky with his latest film. He saw some dolphins on the first day of filming. He then had to dive into the water. The water was very cold, but his biggest problem was that he couldn't swim as fast as the dolphins.

During filming, Tim noticed how friendly the dolphins were and how interested they were in the camera, but he expected this. What he couldn't believe was that when he swam to the right the dolphins did too. It was almost as if they thought he was another dolphin.

In the film, the dolphins seem to be playing games together, which is amazing. But Tim explains that what really shows how intelligent they are, is how they talk to each other by making noises. He says the dolphins use these noises to tell each other where to find food.

For his next project, Tim plans to film elephants in Africa. Sarah Francis, another film-maker, has agreed to work with him on the film. But before he does that, he's going to spend time with his family because he hasn't seen them much recently.
