FSAA Practice #2 - Writing a Persuasive Letter Worksheet

Directions: Read the passage below. Read each question and check the box in front of the words/pictures that answer the question based on the passage.

Snickers is made by the Mars Candy Company. This year, Snickers is back with three new candy bars to satisfy your sweet tooth. This time it's jumping on the nut butter bandwagon and replacing its signature full-size crunchy nuts with smooth and creamy butters.

I tried the peanut butter one and immediately thought I got a dud of a bar. Where are the nuts? This isn't a Snickers! Then I realized that the point of these bars was that the usual very noticeable nuts are now in the form of creamy butters. This one contains a layer of freshly ground peanut butter on top of caramel and ground peanuts all enrobed in milk chocolate. This one reminded me of something, obviously relating to the king of the peanut butter/chocolate throne – Reese's. It's good as you can't go wrong with the combo of peanut butter and chocolate, but it's nothing new and certainly not reminiscent of a Snickers.

What would be a good greeting for your letter?
