BE HAPPY

Can schools teach young people how to think positively and be happy? Is positive thinking a school subject like English, math or geography?

Many people want to learn how to be happy. Nine hundred Harvard University* students go to Tal Ben-Shahar's positive psychology class twice a week. In his class, Ben-Shahar teaches them how to be happy.

These are some of the tips he gives his students:

1. Accept your feelings. It's okay to be sad if your friends forget your birthday.
2. Feel good about yourself. Wear clothes that you like.
3. Do things that you like to do. Meet your friends.
4. Get enough sleep, eat healthy food and exercise. Go to bed early, don't eat too much junk food and play a sport.
5. Think positively! This school year is going to be great!
