

|                         |                                                                                                               |
|-------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Full name               | P. D. James (also known as Phyllis Dorothy James)or The Queen of crime)                                   |
| Date and place of birth | August 3, 1920Oxfordshire, England                                                                 |
| Nationality             | British                                                                                                       |
| Job                     | Mystery writer                                                                                                |
| Studies                 | Self educated writer (ended school at 16 years old)                                                           |
| Family                  | Ernest Connor Bantary White (1941–1964 > date of death)Two children ( Clare , Jane ) |
| Famous books            | "An Unsuitable Job for a Woman""Cover Her Face"                                             |
| Famous character        | Detective Adam Dalgliesh                                                                                      |
| Date and place of death | November 27, 2014 (94 years old)Oxford, England                                                           |

