

The same or different

My brother's name is Larry and we both like a lot of the same things. We both like the same bands and we usually go to concerts together. We're both very busy in the week, but I go to Larry's flat at the weekend and we watch DVDs together. We also play tennis every Sunday morning, but Larry's always late because he hates getting up early!

Larry and I are also very different. He doesn't like cats, but I love them. I love shopping for clothes, but Larry hates it. He usually wears a T-shirt, jeans and trainers! We don't like the same food. I usually eat vegetables and fruit, and he eats burgers and chips every day!

I think Larry is the best brother in the world and I love him very much.

Read about Laurent and Larry. Are these sentences true (t) or false (f)?

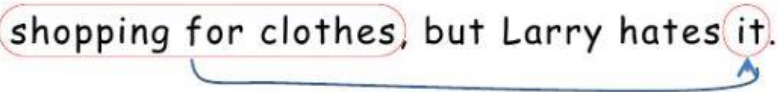

- 1 Laurent and Larry are brothers. ☐
- 2 They like the same music. ☐
- 3 They both like watching DVDs. ☐
- 4 They don't like tennis. ☐
- 5 Larry likes getting up early. ☐
- 6 Laurent doesn't like cats. ☐
- 7 Larry doesn't like shopping for clothes. ☐
- 8 Laurent eats burgers and chips every day. ☐

Sentences with and, but and object pronouns.

We don't usually repeat words in sentences with and and but. Look at these examples. Notice the object pronouns (it, them, etc.)

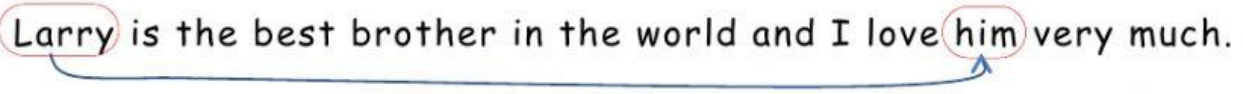

I love shopping for clothes, but Larry hates it.

Larry doesn't like cats, but I love them.

Larry is the best brother in the world and I love him very much.

Write sentences with and and but. Change the words in bold to object pronouns.

1 I love tennis. My sister hates tennis.

2 Tom doesn't like dogs. I love dogs.

3 Anna's my best friend. I email Anna every day.

4 I love rock music. My sister doesn't like rock music.

5 Pete's my son. I love Pete very much.

6 I love horror films. My wife hates horror films.
