

We use Unless in conditional sentences with the meaning 'except if':

Ex: You can't travel on this train unless you

Unless you have a visa, you

With Unless we use present tenses when we talk about the future:

Unless it rains, I'll pick you up at six

Match the sentences halves

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. We'll never get to the meeting.... | A...the farmers will lose their crops. |
| 2. Unless we find alternative sources of funding | B. ...unless the train leaves in five minutes. |
| 3. Unless the streets have changed | C. ...I'm sure I'll be able to find my way there. |
| 4. Unless the weather improves soon... | D. the research will not be able to continue |
| 5. Unless it is ridiculously expensive... | E. ...I think I'll buy that painting. |

Are these sentences correct?

1. He will not see you unless he doesn't cross the street
2. She will get angry with you unless you speak to her
3. I won't go unless you go with me
4. I won't go unless you don't go with me
5. I go unless you will go with me
6. I'll go unless you won't go with me

Transform these sentences using unless

I will not understand the problem if you don't tell me

= I will not understand the problem unless

We won't go to the zoo if you are not coming

= We won't go to the zoo unless

She will always be angry with you if you don't speak to her

= She will always be angry with you unless