Reading

8 Read the article about a children's magazine. Six sentences are missing from the article. Choose from the sentences A–F the one which fits each gap.

Be Happy! for kids

Magazines are a part of most people's lives. (1) As adults, we often choose magazines to suit our own interests: cookery, gardening, cards, health and so on. And what would we do without magazines to look at in waiting rooms or read on trains? Reading is important, and if we don't have time to read novels, then magazines can be a good alternative. There is one age group, however, that has not had a great variety of magazines to choose from. (2)

Jenny and David Myers believe that many children's magazines have things wrong with them. (3) They also say that there aren't any magazines that are suitable for both boys and girls. Most of them are either about monsters and cars (boys) or princesses and clothes (girls). So, Jenny and David decided to start their own children's magazine, Be Happy!, which has now become extremely successful.

Be Happy! is produced by the Myers from their own home in New York. There are craft projects, recipes and stories, as well as lots of interesting information about different things. (4) The magazines are fun and educational, and both parents and children love them. Be Happy! has become so popular that there are plans to produce the magazine every week instead of every month.

(5) Jenny is practical and works in a bank, but David works as a designer. Until now the magazine has been a hobby for both of them but now Be Happy! is starting to take over their lives completely! (6) And it only started as a hobby!
