Directions: Let's make a paragraph today.

How should the new student start a conversation with others? Is a simple hello enough? Or should they start by asking questions about the other person? What about hobbies and interests, like playing sports or reading books? How can the new kid find others at your school that share the same hobbies as them? Should they join any after school clubs and which ones should they join? Is there a popular TV show or a video game that everyone is talking about at your school? What kind of words do students like using at your school? For example is the word, 'radical' something you would say? Alternatively, what words or things are considered uncool? Think about break time and lunchtime arrangements. What should the new student do during break time? How can they join in with other groups of students? And where is the best place to sit at your school's cafeteria at lunchtime? Just imagine, if you were the new kid at a brand-new school, how would you make friends? What advice would you give the new kid? Is it best to be yourself or to be someone that everyone likes? Is it better to have one or two close friends... Or to have ten or twenty distant friends to just hang out with. Are there any cliques or close groups of friends at your school that the new kid could find difficult joining? Like the cool kids, the football players or the goth kids?
