5 Choose the correct answers.

In 2013, my family decided to move from Slovakia to the UK. I went to school there, but in the beginning, I had a very hard time. First of all, I was really embarrassed because I spoke with a Slovak <sup>1</sup>dialect / accent / slang. Secondly, even though the <sup>2</sup>fluent / foreign / official language is English, which I had learned in school, I couldn't understand the <sup>3</sup>dialect / native / official speakers, because there are many <sup>4</sup>dialects / translations / slang. It all sounded like a completely <sup>5</sup>native / official / foreign language – nothing I remembered from school. But I was lucky to make some Slovak friends, so in the beginning they taught me by using <sup>6</sup>translation / slang / foreign language. I also watched a lot of English TV, tried to speak to as many people as possible, read newspapers, and after a while, I stopped having problems and became a(n) <sup>7</sup>official / fluent / native speaker. I even picked up some for <sup>8</sup>dialect / slang / translation.
