Questions 19 to 26

You are going to read an extract from an article. For questions 19 to 26, choose the correct answer (A, B, C, or D) and mark the correct letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet.

Last week, my sister and I visited our grandfather on his birthday. After having a dinner, at a restaurant, my grandfather drove us home. While he was driving, he became frustrated because he could not remember the name of the singer of a song he had just listened to on the radio. Without hesitation, I reached for my smartphone, quickly searched for the song, and found the name: Bob Dylan. For me and my sister, this was completely normal, however, it astonished my grandfather, who could not understand how I obtained the information so quickly. My sister and I laughed and explained, but it made me reflect on how much I rely on technology.

The list of ways I use technology is endless: writing, planning, socialising, communicating, and shopping. These tasks are done using a laptop, tablet, or even a desktop computer. I did not realise how much technology has been significant in many ways for me and my peers. 'Raj, how do you know the singer?' his question startled me from my thought. He asked me how I used my phone and about my university life. He believed that we have an easier life compared to his generation. My sister and I exchanged a smile.

As he was always interested in education, my grandfather was curious and started to ask more about how we use technology in our studies. I explained that nowadays we have access to e-libraries. He was fascinated that a simple online search for any chosen study topic can immediately provide access to a vast range of resources.

I also highlighted that at my university, the interaction between students and university staff has undergone significant changes due to technological advancements. The most popular means of communication is instant messaging like WhatsApp. It is now unacceptable for messages to go unanswered for an extended period. On the contrary, email is losing popularity among students because it is often considered too slow.

Looking at his eager face, I shared how technology is used widely in my university. I told him about how the role of the university's academic support team had changed. These teams usually have to attend to queries and technical issues immediately. For example, issues regarding university admissions and online thesis submission are expected to be done promptly. Apart from that, the replacement of printed textbooks with e-books allows students the luxury of having up-to-date, interactive, and even personalised learning materials, with the added benefit of being cost-effective. Hence, electronic devices such as tablets, smartphones, and laptops are now standard equipment in most classrooms and lecture halls.

When comparing the lives of past and present-day students, it is obvious there are vast differences brought about by technology. In reality, students adapt and embrace available resources to work efficiently and lead more enjoyable lives. It is undeniable technological changes are here to stay.

STRATEGIES FOR SELF-CARE

A - Sareb

I practise deeper breathing. I inhale at a slow and steady pace at a count of four and exhale slowly and steadily at a count of four or five. I do this a few times a day or as often as I can to calm myself. I feel rejuvenated to start a new day.

B - Fahmi

Spending any free time with people who make me happy brings me joy. I will allocate one whole day every week to get together with my family and friends just to talk, eat or hang out at our favourite eatery. Time is not an issue as I am always available to keep in touch with them through video calls and social media.

I was recommended by my English teacher to start writing a journal: for gratitude, for simple thoughts or just to note what is happening each day. Getting our thoughts down can be therapeutic, but the very act of holding a pen or pencil can also be soothing.

Nature is a blessing. Going out every day, walking in the park or exercising will revitalise my body. I always find looking at flowers in the garden brightens up my mood. At least 15 minutes of sunlight every day helps lift my spirit.

Love what you are doing. Pick a hobby that you like. Choose one thing you love to do and refuse to let go of – even if you do it only once a week. I decided to focus on baking and I am loving it! It brings self-satisfaction to me when my friends enjoy my pastries.

F - Nafis

I make sure my health is my priority. I keep track of my health checkups. I have never missed my medical and dental appointments. Occasionally, I pamper myself with a good massage as it is good for blood circulation.
