Rafael was excited for his first day in Bali, but woke up feeling unwell. He had a fever and a severe headache. Trying to get out of bed, he felt weak and dizzy. Remembering the recommendations from his audiobook, he searched on his phone for a nearby pharmacy and cautiously made his way there. At the pharmacy, he explained his symptoms in English to the pharmacist, who recommended appropriate medication and rest.

He returned to his accommodation, took the medicine, and lay down. Rafael felt a bit worried about being sick in a foreign country, but also relieved that he could communicate and get help. The next day, although not fully recovered, he felt much better. Rafael reflected on the importance of health while traveling and knowing essential English phrases for situations like this.

According to the story answer these questions:

1 What symptoms did Rafael have?

4 What word could replace "returned"?

2 How did he find the pharmacy?

5 How did Rafael feel about being sick ?

3 What did the pharmacist recommend?

6 Which sentence would you use to express you feel sick?