Read the account of a true event. Replace the underlined words with strong adjective.

It was the last day of my summer holiday in Spain. I was staying with my family in the south of Spain. It was a (1) very nice location with lots to see, such as a (2) very big castle and a (3) very interesting museum. Every morning before we start our busy day, I would get up early and go to the market to buy fresh fruit and vegetables. So, I became friends with the market traders who were pleased to see me and greeted me with friendly smiles.

So, on that day I had my camera with me, and I asked some market traders to stand together for a photo. 'Of course!' they replied, and they got ready for me to take the photo. I was looking through my camera and walking backwards when suddenly, I felt my legs slip. I fell to the ground and at the same time knocked a stall over. All the produce went flying into the air and fell on top of me. But it wasn't fruit. There were thousands of (4) very small fish and they were all over me. I was (5) very dirty.

I went as red as a beetroot! Everyone in the market burst out laughing which made me feel (6) very angry. In the end, I saw a funny side of it and started laughing too. I gave the man at the fish stall my camera and he took a photo of me covered in fish. I laugh everytime I look at that photo and now I don't think it was a (7) very bad experience after all.
