

	Rosie learned that the only true failure is if she quits.
	Together they worked on building another copter.
	Rosie built her great-great-aunt a cheese copter that flew for a bit then crashed to the ground.
	Rosie's great-great-aunt Rose came to stay. She told Rosie she had always wanted to fly.
	However, when Rosie was young she wasn't so shy. She would build things for her family.
	Rosie was shy at school but when no one was around, she would look in the trash to find treasures to build things with.
	Great-Great-Aunt Rose laughed. Even though the cheese-copter crashed, her aunt thought it was a raging success.