Avoid being a crime victim.

Visiting a new city can be exciting, but every big city has crime. Nevertheless, that shouldn't stop you from having a great time. Here are some tips so that you don't become a victim.

1. Let's start with the obvious. Day or night, don't hang out in areas that don't seem safe. And remember: It's always better to be with other people than to be alone.

2. We all want to look our best, but it's not a good idea to wear an expensive watch or valuable jewelry in public. Carry those in a pocket or bag where no one can see them.

3. Don't act like you are from out of town. Walk like you live there! Pay attention to your "personal space", and know what the people around you are doing. Earbuds are cool, but, let's face it, you can't pay attention to others while you're listening to music.

4. Always bring your phone with you, but don't make it easy for someone to steal it. Wait to call or text until you're inside a restaurant or some other safe place. Before you take any photos, be aware of who's nearby.

5. Be especially careful if you use an ATM or cash machine at a bank or when you're buying souvenirs or tickets. Don't let other people see your money.

There are millions of people who visit cities all over the world every day. Someone somewhere will probably become the victim of a crime. But it doesn't have to be you.
