

THE VITAL FUNCTIONS

The vital functions are a set of processes essential for maintaining life. There are three vital functions:

-
-
-

Nutrition: allows living beings to obtain _____ and _____

Nutrition is carried out through the following processes:

- A) Obtaining
- B) Respiration
- C) Distributing
- D) _____

B) There are two types of nutrition:

- C) _____ nutrition: synthesizing organic nutrients from _____ ones (carbon dioxide, for example) and solar energy → Photosynthesis.
- D) _____ nutrition: obtaining _____ nutrients and energy from the organic matter of other _____

Interaction: allows living beings to _____ to changes, around them or within their own organism

Interaction processes imply the following steps:

- A) Perceiving _____ BY _____
- B) Establishing _____ BY _____
- C) _____ Responses BY _____

Reproduction: this function is used by living beings for generating and ensuring the of the specie.

There are 2 types of reproduction:

1. reproduction : individual producing offspring that are to it.
2. reproduction: parent individuals of different sexes (male and female) producing offspring that are similar to themselves. Specialized reproductive cells called are required.