Instructions: Read the next text and complete the activities.

What Type of Bird Are You?

One in ten people is a lark. About two in ten are owls and enjoy staying up very late. If you like to get up early, have coffee, and read the paper, you're probably a lark. Owls often don't eat breakfast and have to hurry to get to work in the morning. If you do laundry or surf the internet at midnight, you're probably an owl.

Larks and owls often have different jobs. Emergency-room doctors, for example, work more at night. They are usually owls. Writers and artists are often larks. For example, cartoonist Scott Adams is a lark. "I never try to do any creating past noon," he says. "And I only exercise in the late afternoon. I draw from 6 a.m. to 7 a.m. Then I write for a few hours."
