

The Olympics in 776 BCE

in Olympia in Greece and every four years until 394 CE.

The First Games were a one-day event and had just one running event.

The Olympics became a five-day event and from about 400 BCE they took five days.

There was a parade on both the first day and the last day.

Some of the events were foot races, wrestling, and chariot races.

There were also running races, horse races, chariot races, and wrestling.