

Everyone has it, but no one can lose it: indefinite pronouns

1. Try to solve the riddles below in pairs. When your teacher gives you the answers, decide which riddle is the cleverest.

- a) You walk into a room carrying something. Glass breaks, everybody screams and something dies.
What happened?
- b) What can you find here, there and everywhere?
- c) What flies around all day but doesn't go anywhere?
- d) Somebody's mother has four sons. North, South and East. What is the name of the fourth son.
- e) Everyone has it, but no one can lose it.
- f) It doesn't belong to everyone, it belongs to you. But everybody uses it and it doesn't worry you.
- g) It has hands and a face, but it can't hold anything or smile.

riddle
a confusing question with a clever or funny answer

2. Look at the riddles in ex. 1 and underline the indefinite pronouns (beginning with no-, some-, any- and every-).

3. Look at the riddles again and tick (✓) which type or types of sentences the pronouns beginning with no-, some-, any- and every- are used in. Then, complete the rules.

	Affirmative	Negative	Question
NO-
SOME-ANY-EVERY-

RULES:

- a) The eight indefinite pronouns used to talk about people are:
- b) The four indefinite pronouns used to talk about places are:
- c) The four indefinite pronouns used to talk about things are:
- d) All the indefinite pronouns are grammatically third person singular/plural.
- e) Some can be used in questions, e.g. Would you like something to eat? or Could I have something to drink? which are polite/impolite offers or requests.

Everyone has it, but no one can lose it: indefinite pronouns

4. Correct the mistake in each sentence.

- a) Do anybody know the answer?
- b) I rang the doorbell but anybody answered.
- c) Where are everybody going?
- d) Did you hear something I've just said?
- e) There is anywhere in the world I'd rather be.
- f) Everybody were angry with me.
- g) I haven't got nothing to say.
- h) Could we go anywhere sunny?
- i) It's not for anybody.

5. Look at the sentences in ex. 4 again and decide who said them and in what situations. Be creative.

EXAMPLE

Does anybody know the answer?

Students were checking their answers to an exercise on indefinite pronouns with their teacher. One example was really difficult so nobody said anything and the teacher asked this question hoping that somebody would say something. Unfortunately, nobody answered.

6. Complete the description of the picture with indefinite pronouns.

The woman looks sad. Maybe she fought with or she wanted to have a party and came. Perhaps she failed an exam because she didn't know or a family member fell ill and there is she can do. Maybe she needs help but she can't find to help her, or she did silly and is embarrassed now.

Everyone has it, but no one can lose it: indefinite pronouns

7. Complete the description of the picture with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

The people (be) probably somewhere inside, maybe in an office. Something behind them (be) blue. Perhaps it's a wall.

Everybody (talk) and nobody (look) bored. They (wear) colourful clothes, but nobody (wear) black. Everyone (be) pretty tall and everything they are holding (be) necessary for their work.

8. In pairs, describe the pictures below using as many of the indefinite pronouns in the box as possible.

anybody	anyone	anything	anywhere	everybody	everyone
everything	everywhere	nobody	no one	nothing	nowhere
somebody	someone	something	somewhere

Everyone has it, but no one can lose it: indefinite pronouns

9. Finish the sentences below so that they are true for you.

- a) Nobody in my family gets up...
- b) I don't know anybody who speaks...
- c) Today, I have eaten something...
- d) Everybody in my family likes watching...
- e) I know somebody who went...
- f) Nothing on my desk is...
- g) This week, I haven't been anywhere...

10. Think what questions with indefinite pronouns you could ask a partner, to see if the sentences in ex. 9 are also true for them. Then, ask your partner the questions you have prepared and answer theirs. Do you have a lot in common?

EXAMPLE:

Nobody in my family gets up at six a.m.

Does anybody in your family get up at 6 a.m.?

11. Work with a partner. Have a conversation using the indefinite pronouns on your role play card.