Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

People often talk about English as an international language. But why English? In the past, the British Empire spread English through trade because British merchants bought and sold things around the world. Over time, English became a global language. Also, English has simple grammar and its vocabulary is easy to pick up, so it is the main language in international trade, industry, finance and entertainment.

Did you know that today there are over 1.5 billion English speakers and millions of people take up the language every day? When we think of English, we usually think of the UK, but did you know that 67 countries have English as one of their official languages? Although the USA has the largest number of English speakers in the world, English isn't an official language there.

In fact, the USA hasn't got an official language. Despite having two official languages, Canada the third-largest English-speaking population, while Australia and New Zealand are next. Two other countries which use English as the main language are the Republic of Ireland and South Africa.

Since English is popular all around the world, speaking English is something you have in common with others wherever you go.
