Green Mountain

Have you ever climbed Green Mountain? I've climbed it several times, but the best time was with the Garcias in 2009. Mr. Garcia and his son didn't have a very healthy lifestyle at home. They ate a lot of junk food and didn't exercise a lot. But they only took challenging vacations. They were bored with art museums and they thought beach resorts were disappointing. They loved bungee jumping in New Zealand, scuba diving in the Atlantic Ocean, or whitewater rafting in Colorado.

We climbed Green Mountain in one day, and we didn't stop once. When we reached the top, I took photos and Mr. Garcia sang his favorite song. His son tried to make him stop, but Mr. Garcia just sang louder—it was quite funny. On the way down, Mr. Garcia told us, "Going down is often more dangerous than going up. We have to be careful of tripping over small rocks or tree branches."

We got back to our campground just before it started to rain. We were all tired and hungry.

"I know we shouldn't eat junk food," Mr. Garcia said. "But I think we should order a pizza. What do you think?"

"I think pizza is a great idea!" said Mr. Garcia's son.

"So do I," Mrs. Garcia said. "We've had a long day."

The pizza was the most delicious pizza I have ever eaten. It was the perfect way to end an amazing day.

36. What activity is the writer describing?
A) bungee jumping
B) scuba diving
C) climbing a mountain
37. What activity do Mr. Garcia and his son dislike?
A) eating cold pizza
B) looking at art in a museum
C) singing songs
38. What did the writer do at the top of the mountain?
A) he took photos
B) he sang a song
C) he ate pizza

39. What was Mr. Garcia's advice?
A) Visit a museum.
B) Stay at a beach resort.
C) Be careful when you go down the mountain.
40. When did it start raining?
A) Before they reached the campground.
B) At the top of the mountain.
C) After they reached the campground.
