2. Modals of Obligation:

(must/mustn't/have to/don't have to/ought to/ought not/need to/need not)

- You must improve your spelling.
- You must get up early.

Must is used to express necessity or obligation.

Must or need to are often used when the obligation comes from the speaker. We often use must or need to for more personal opinions about what it is necessary to do. When the obligation comes from somewhere else, have to is often used. We use have to for what somebody in authority has said it is necessary to do.

- I must go on a diet as I gained a lot of weight recently. (It's my own idea)
- I have to go on a diet otherwise I might get diabetic soon. (The doctor asked me to go on a diet.)

- I must remember to get a present for my cousin. (my opinion)
- You have to look after your dogs' hair regularly. (dog experts say so)
- Do you have to wear a tie for school? (asking about school rules)

Ought to expresses moral obligation

- We ought to respect our neighbours.
- You ought to know better.

Absence of Obligation

1. We use must not or mustn't to express that something is forbidden.

- In America, you must not drive your car on the left.
- In England, you mustn't drive your car on the right.

2. We use don't have to, need not, or needn't to show that there is no obligation.

3.Modals of Possibility/Probability : (must/might/may/could)

"Degree of certainty" refers to how sure we are-what we think the chances are-that something is true. If we are sure that something is true in the present, we do not need to use a modal. For example, if I say, "Mariam is sick," I am sure; I am stating a fact that I am sure of. My degree of certainty here is 100%. If I am asked "Why isn't Mariam in class?" and I am not sure of the reason, I can respond in the following ways:

- She must be sick.
- Here, I am 95% sure that she is (not 100%)
- She may be sick.
- Here, I am 50% sure that she is.
- She might be sick.
- Here, I am less than 50% sure that she is.
- She could be sick.
- Here, I am stating a mere guess.
- This is a very weak degree of certainty.

4. Modals of Prediction

"Will" or "Be Going to" to Express a Prediction

Both "will" and "be going to" can express the idea of a prediction about the future. Predictions are guesses about what might happen in the future. If we use going to, there is usually some evidence to support the prediction.

- I think it will rain later .(a guess based on a feeling I have)
- It's going to rain later .(I can see black clouds in the sky)
- Liverpool won't win the FA Cup this year – their team isn't good enough. (a prediction based on my own knowledge and feelings)
- Chelsea are going to win the Championship. (I know they have enough points)

With 'I believe', 'I'm sure', 'I think', we usually use will or won't as we may not have any evidence to support our prediction.

- I think you will pass.
- I believe she will score the highest.
- I'm sure they will win the match.

5. Modals of Permission : (can/could/may)

Can, could and may are used to ask for permission. Can, could and may are almost identical when used as modals of permission. Can is considered more informal than could and may. Since can, could and may are modals of permission, they are used in questions. The modals of permission are usually used with questions involving "I" or "we." However, they can be used in questions that ask permission for everyone except the person or people that one is asking. Examples:

- Can I have some candy, please?
- Could you close the window, please?
- May I have a cup of tea?
- Can we leave now?
- Could you keep the noise down, please?
- May I have a glass of water, please?
- Could they do it instead of me?
