

Listen to the Ted Talk and put the sentences in order.

I understood that traveling was a little more than just taking off tourist attractions off a list.

It turned out to be one of the greatest trips of my life.

I would insist we saw all the tourist attractions.

My parents would take me to distant places around the world.

People are the reason these destinations are full of life and flavor.

I saw the world as though I was reading a guidebook.

It all changed when one day I came back from school and my parents, completely out of the blue, announced to me that we were going to Japan.

I try to plan time to simply enjoy myself, meet new people, let myself have a real adventure.
