Jack Jackson, Reporter

Jack Jackson was a normal boy who liked playing baseball with his friends. Not many people knew that his big brother was Ernie Jackson, the famous reporter for the Calgary Times.

One Saturday, Ernie told Jack that he was investigating a very difficult case and that he was worried he couldn't solve it. The case was about Madeline Mulrooney, the richest woman in Calgary. Her diamond ring was missing.

"She thinks her swimming coach took it," Ernie said. "However, he says he hasn't stolen anything. I'm not sure who to believe."

"I'll help you," said Jack. "Let's interview Mrs. Mulrooney together."

The brothers went to the Mulrooney mansion. Mrs. Mulrooney explained what happened. She said that she always put her ring on the coffee table before she swam in her pool.

Think What's the main conflict in the story?

"The water in the pool isn't good for my ring, and it also dries my skin," she said. "I always put on hand cream and wear cotton gloves to bed."

"Where are the gloves now?" Jack asked.

"I throw them away each morning," she said, pointing to a garbage can.

Jack rushed over to the can. He searched through it and pulled out many gloves. Carefully, he felt each one, and then he smiled.

Think What possible resolutions are there to the conflict?

"Your ring is right here," said Jack. "The cream was slippery, so your ring came off with this glove. You only noticed after swimming."

"You solved the case!" shouted Ernie.

"You're my hero!" said Mrs. Mulrooney.

The next day, the headline of the Calgary Times read, "Young Reporter Discovers Missing Diamond!" Jack celebrated by playing baseball with his friends. However, he wondered if there were any more cases to solve.

Local Girl Wins Area Spelling Bee

by Thomas Porter

Mia Silva, a 4th-grade student at Central Elementary School here in Redwood, is the new spelling bee champion in the area.

Last night, at exactly 7:35 p.m., Mia Silva stood on stage at the Jane Austen Arena. Her parents were watching nervously. Mia took a breath, and then she listened to the speaker say the final word of the spelling competition.

"The word was troubadour," Mia said later. "It's a European musician from long ago. I knew the word started out like trouble, and then it was easy to remember the rest of it."

Mia spelled the word correctly. She has now become the top speller among students from fifty elementary schools. Next week, she will go to the national competition.

Mia says she isn't too worried. Her mother agrees. "Mia hasn't been nervous," she said. "She just enjoys everything she does. She loves reading, writing, and being with friends."

The town of Redwood congratulates Mia for doing so well. Mia, best of luck as you go on to the national competition!
