A'Famosa is a former Portuguese fortress that is located in Malacca. It is one of the oldest surviving European architectural remains in Southeast Asia.

It is one of the popular sites to visit in Malacca. The fortress was built in 1511 under the command of Alfonso de Albuquerque. The purpose of the fortress was to create an outpost so that Malacca would be a port linking Portugal to the Spice Route in China. The fortress consisted of long ramparts and four major towers.

However, the fortress changed ownership during 1641 when the Dutch drove the Portuguese out of Malacca. In the 18th century, the fortress changed ownership again when the Dutch handed it over to the British. Nowadays, the fortress served as a landmark and a popular tourist spot.

18. A'Famosa is located in _____.
- A Perak
 - B Sabah
 - C Malacca
 - D Terengganu
19. Who took over the A'Famosa after the Portuguese?
