Sometimes you win the race, but not the prize.

Cody and her step-brother, Ronald, decided they wanted a dog. They headed down to the local pet store and had a look around. There was a very small pet store that didn't have many animals. The owner of the shop was a nice old man named Mr. Smith. He walked over and greeted Cody and Ronald. They let him know what they wanted, so the owner showed them 2 dogs to choose from: A very big Bulldog called Buster and a very tiny Chihuahua called Teacup. Everyone liked a different dog, so they went outside to discuss it. They decided to race home for it. The winner of the race would choose the dog. In that moment, Ronald told Cody her shoelace was untied, so when she looked down, he ran off and got a head start. Cody ran as hard as she could because she really wanted that Chihuahua, but unfortunately Ronald was so far in front of her that she couldn't even see him. After the 6-minute race, she knew who the winner was.

They returned to the pet store to purchase Buster the bulldog. However, when they arrived, they only saw the Chihuahua. They asked the owner, and he explained that a few minutes they left, a couple walked in and bought the bulldog. They looked at each other and said sadly: "We'll take the Chihuahua".
