

The first conditional is useful because due to this we are able to tell a condition with a result in negative which means that the clause must be different from the main clause in this time we are going to see the negative of the verbal time

Let's try to think about some situation where there's a cause and a negative result

Reverse can be used the meaning doesn't change

If i don take a taxi, I won't be on time Remember you can use the contraction of will / won't
