

Son las diez menos veinte.

Es la una menos siete.

How do you express time before the hour? _____

Unlike English, Spanish does not have an equivalent for the expression o'clock. Instead, it uses the definite article and a number (la una, las dos, etc.). Es la is used for one o'clock and its divisions (Es la una). For all other time expressions, use Son las (Son las siete).

To express time AFTER the hour, up until and including half-past, use y and add the number of minutes (Son las siete y cinco).

After half-past, to express time BEFORE the next hour, use menos and subtract the number of minutes from that next hour (Son las nueve menos cinco).
