Mix and Match

In the depths of the Black Sea, you could expect to find lots of fish, crabs, and perhaps a few jellyfish. But what about human artists? It's true. For an exhibition in the Ukraine, a group of painters put on their scuba gear, collected canvasses and paints and dove to the bottom of the sea. They could only stay there for about 40 minutes, using the time to paint beautiful pictures. But the surroundings are challenging, especially because the colors look very different underwater from how they look on the surface.

1. What does 'It's true' refer to in the third sentence.
A. that there are jellyfish in the Black Sea
B. that artists paint pictures in the Black Sea
2. Why could the artists only paint for 40 minutes?
A. because they were breathing through scuba equipment
B. because they didn't take enough paint
3. Why are the surroundings 'challenging'?
A. because there are dangerous sea creatures
B. because the conditions are different from those on the surface
4. What happens to color underwater?
A. It has a different appearance underwater.
B. It changes when it mixes with water.
