The Legend of Roro Jonggrang

Roro Jonggrang was a beautiful princess, the daughter of King Prabu Siliwangi. One day, she caught the attention of a powerful prince named Bandung Bondowoso, who was infatuated with her beauty and wished to marry her. However, Roro Jonggrang had no intention of marrying him, as she had already loved someone else.

To escape her fate, Roro Jonggrang devised a cunning plan. She agreed to marry Bandung Bondowoso on the condition that he could build a thousand temples in just one night. Confident in his supernatural abilities, Bandung Bondowoso accepted the challenge. He called upon spirits to help him, and they began constructing the temples at an astonishing pace.

As dawn approached, Roro Jonggrang, realizing that he might succeed, devised a plan to thwart him. She ordered her maidens to pound rice and create a commotion that mimicked the sound of roosters crowing. Hearing the sounds, the spirits mistook it for dawn and fled, leaving Bandung Bondowoso with only 999 temples completed.

Furious and heartbroken, Bandung Bondowoso …….
