

"A Stormy Afternoon"

Last Saturday afternoon, Laura and her friends were having a picnic at the park. The sun was shining, and everyone was enjoying the nice weather. Laura was talking to her best friend, Sarah, while Sarah's little brother, Ben, was playing with a ball nearby. Suddenly, dark clouds started to appear in the sky. They were getting bigger and darker every minute.

Laura noticed the change and asked her friends if they should pack up, but they were laughing and saying that it was nothing to worry about. Meanwhile, some kids were running around and playing on the swings, not paying attention to the sky. Within minutes, it began to rain heavily. Everyone was grabbing their things and running towards the parking lot.

As Laura was picking up their picnic blanket, she slipped and fell on the wet grass. Her friends were helping her up when they heard a loud thunderclap. They quickly gathered their belongings and ran to the car, completely soaked but laughing about the whole experience.
