Urbanization is the process by which more and more people leave the countryside to live in cities. It has been a major trend in many parts of the world, particularly in developing countries. While urbanization brings about economic opportunities, better access to services, and improved infrastructure, it also has its downsides.

One of the most significant challenges of urbanization is the strain it places on housing. Many rapidly growing cities experience housing shortages, which lead to the creation of slums. These informal settlements are often overcrowded, lacking in basic sanitation, and prone to health issues. Another issue associated with urbanization is traffic congestion. As more people move to cities, the demand for transportation increases, leading to packed roads and public transportation systems.

Pollution is also a major problem in highly urbanized areas. The increased use of vehicles, factories, and power plants results in higher levels of air and water pollution. Furthermore, the loss of green spaces due to construction contributes to environmental degradation. Despite these challenges, urbanization is often seen as an inevitable part of modern development, and cities continue to grow as people seek better opportunities.

Question 31. What is the main topic of the passage?

Will robots change our lives in the future? It's a funny (19)..... to ask when they're changing our lives now in so many ways and they have been for years. From the first time you saw a toaster (20).....by itself, we've casually accepted that machines can be trusted to do things for us.

Right now all modern technology is designed to (21).....the world to you: phone, radio, television, internet, but if trends continue, robots will soon bring you to the world, everywhere, and at the (22).....of thought.

It's a future goal - something we know we (23).....do. Robots won't just change our lives in the future, they'll expand them. Not just for fun, but for necessity. We've taken the first steps into welcoming them (24).....our homes, we just have to wait a bit to proctor them into making us more human. Do you agree?

American foods began to affect the rest of the world. American emphasis on convenient and rapid consumption is best represented in fast foods such as hamburgers, French fries, and soft drinks. By the 1960s and 1970s fast foods became one of America's strongest exports as franchises for Me Donald's and Burger King spread through Europe and other parts of the world, including Russia and China. Traditional meals cooked at home and consumed at a leisurely pace gave way to quick lunches and dinners eaten on the run as other countries imitated American cultural patterns.

By the late 20th century Americans had become more conscious of their diets, eating more poultry, fish and vegetables, and fewer eggs and less beef. Cooks began to rediscover many world cuisines in forms closer to their original. In California, chefs combined fresh fruits and vegetables available with ingredients and spices borrowed from immigrant kitchens to create an innovative cooking style that was lighter than traditional French, but more interesting and varied than typical American cuisine. Along with the state's wines, California cuisine took its place among the acknowledged forms of fine dining.
