Simon: Hurry up James! I don't want to be late for recess.
James: But we should invite someone else to play with us.
Simon: What about Jack?
James: No! He is weird and has no friends.
Simon: What are you talking about! You don't even know him. Have you ever talked to him to say all those things?
James: No, I haven't, but if nobody gets close to him it is because he is weird. Don't you think so?
Simon: I don't agree with you. So, I am inviting him.
… a few minutes later.
Simon: Hi Jack!
Jack: Hi Simon! What's up!
Simon: Would you like to play soccer with me and James during recess?
Jack: Of course! I love soccer, did you know that I was part of the school team at my former school?
Simon: Really? Great! So, let's play.
… after recess.
Simon: James, what do you think about Jack's game?
James: He is good; we should always play with him.
Simon: Didn't you think he was weird?
James: It is true, but I was wrong. It turns out he is good and also fun.
Simon: See, you shouldn't judge people by other's points of view.
James: Furthermore it's good to be friendly, it's better to gain more friends.
Simon: I am happy you think like that!
