Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

A food critic is a professional writer who tries food and writes about it. They may also be called a food writer or a restaurant reviewer. Most of the time, food critics go to different restaurants, order a range of dishes, and write about what they ate. There are people who review food for newspapers, magazines, blogs, and websites. But not every job in this field pays well or even pays at all. Food writers who are just starting out might send in unpaid reviews at first just to get a byline and build up their list of published works. Some food critics get their start by posting about their food and dining experiences on social media.

Top food writers can try new foods all over the world. Some of these experts have their own shows on TV. Food experts who do well can also put their work in books. This is a highly coveted career with a limited number of paid openings. Those who want this job need to be willing to put in a lot of hard work and time.

Here are the salary ranges for each job:

- Journalist: $36 per hour
- Reporter: $41,869 per year
- Staff writers: $38,716 per year
- Content writers: $17.54 per hour
- Total salaries: from $7.25 to $74.45 per hour

Because this is such a small field, there isn't much information about how much food writers make. But there is information for journalists, reporters, staff writers, and content writers, whose jobs are similar to those of food reviews. Many food reviewers only write about food part of the time. When they're not reviewing restaurants, they work as full-time journalists or reporters who cover other topics.

29. What can be the title of the passage?
A. How Food Critic Organizes Their Work B. Exploring the World of Food Critics
C. Food Critic- A Highly Stressful Job D. Being a Food Critic Changes Lives
30. The main role of a food critic is _____.
A. to travel the world and try new dishes
B. to write about their food and dining experiences on social media
C. to try and review food, and write about their experiences
D. to publish their work in books
31. According to the passage, all are true EXCEPT _____.
A. The salary range for food critics is not specified.
B. Food critics earn higher salaries than journalists and content writers.
C. Some food critics may not receive any payment for their work.
D. Food critics often work as full-time journalists or reporters to supplement their income.
32. The word "coveted" in the passage can be replaced by _____.
A. unwanted B. desired C. responsible D. limited
33. What can be inferred about the number of full-time positions available for food critics?
A. There is a high demand for full-time food critics.
B. Most food critics prefer to work part-time.
C. Full-time food critic jobs are highly competitive.
D. Getting a bachelor's degree surely make you sought-after.

How long will a baby born today live? 100 years? 120 years? Scientists are studying genes that could mean long life for us all.

There are already many, many people who have passed the landmark age of 100. In fact, there are now so many healthy, elderly people that there's a name for them: the welllderly. These are people over the age of eighty who have no major illnesses, such as high blood pressure, heart disease or diabetes.

There are many scientific studies of communities where healthy old age is typical. These include places like Calabria in southern Italy and the island of Okinawa in Japan. In Calabria, the small village of Molochio has about 2,000 inhabitants. And of these, there are at least eight people over a hundred years old. When researchers ask people like this the secret of their long life, the answer is almost always about food and is almost always the same: 'I eat a lot of fruit and vegetables.' 'I eat a little bit of everything.' 'I neither smoke nor drink.'

In the past, scientists looked at things such as diet and lifestyle for an explanation of long life, these days they are also looking at genetics. Researcher Eric Topol says that there must be genes that explain why people are protected from the effects of aging process. The new research into long life did scrutinize groups of people who have a genetic connection. One interesting group lives in Ecuador. In one area of the country there are a number of people with the same genetic condition. It's called Laron syndrome. These people don't grow very tall – just over one metre. But Laron syndrome also give them protection against cancer and diabetes. As a result, they live longer than other people in their families. Meanwhile, on the Hawaiian island of Oahu, there's another group of long-lived men, Japanese-Americans. They have a similar gene to the Laron syndrome group.

Back in Calabria, researchers constructed the family trees of the 100-year-old people. They looked at family information from the 19th century to today. It is concluded that there are genetic factors that give health benefits to the men. This is a surprising result because generally in Europe, women live longer than men. So what really makes people live longer? It seems likely that it is an interaction of genes, the environment and probably a third factor – luck.

34. Which of the following is NOT true about the Laron syndrome?
- A. This syndrome is a health problem for groups of people in Ecuador and Hawaii.
 - B. It is the result of a genetic condition.
 - C. People diagnosed with this syndrome are prone to diabetes.
