A Man's Life Without Money

Once, there was a man named Tom who decided to live without money for a year. He wanted to see if it was possible and if it would make him _____. Instead of buying things, Tom started by growing his own vegetables in a small garden. He also learned how to fix his own clothes and tools. Whenever he needed something, he would _____ what he had with his neighbors.

Tom used free community _____, like parks for exercise and local libraries for reading. He made friends in his community who helped him find what he needed. For example, when his bicycle broke, a neighbor fixed it in exchange for some of Tom's fresh vegetables.

At first, it was _____ for Tom to adjust to this new way of living. But as time passed, he enjoyed the simplicity and felt more _____ to his _____. By the end of the year, Tom realized that living without money had taught him a lot about sharing, resourcefulness, and the value of community.
