

- 1 A jewelry store has to be protected with security systems. Likewise, the data of a company have to be protected from danger. In a world shared by billions of people, valuable things have to be protected. When it comes to human life, the most valuable thing, things are much more complicated but not out of control. Basic human rights, which are vital to human life, have been clearly defined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and many countries recognize it.
- 2 The Universal Declaration of Human Rights focuses on human rights in many respects. One of them is gender equality. Men and women should have equality before the law, in social and political life.
- 3 Another important issue is children's rights. Children should be able to enjoy the privilege of being a child to the fullest extent. They shouldn't be deprived of education and basic children's rights.
- 4 The disadvantaged are also of great importance. They have been defined clearly for different contexts and countries, and their rights have to be observed. Efforts have to be made to improve their conditions.
- 5 To sum up, humans go through different contexts and experiences, and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights is considered to be a reference to protect human rights from danger and disadvantages.