Mrs Jenkins from Hastings, England, is writing to her sister in America:

It's been the worst heat wave in the south of England for twenty years, and it properly here for six months. Everybody the heat, and our supply of water for only two or three more weeks. Water is so scarce that it for seventeen hours a day. We use the hall as a storage for water because it's the coolest place in our flat. My doctor drinking lots of hot tea with lemon, which I do, though I a glass of ice-cold water. As our flat faces south, it gets very hot. It's like living in a greenhouse.

Recently, Bill called out to me from the living room.".....," he said, pointing out of the window. "Those children have their own method of keeping cool." In the garden, our neighbours' children under a tree, covered with thick layers of wet sand and earth. Yesterday, on the radio, a heavy thunderstorm was forecast for today. But I any signs of it yet. You simply cannot rely on the weather forecast.
