

Watch the videos, fill in the gaps, and answer the questions about them.

Video #1:

– You know what, sweetie, when are we moving to Chicago? I wanna make sure we are able to find a nice house and I can sew the drapes and pick matching bed covers.
– This is how you now want to be spending this evening? This is what you wanna do?
– You started it.
– No, you are the one who will not shut up about it. But if you wanna talk about it, really talk about it, I would prefer _____ an unemotional, rational conversation. Do you think we could do that?
– Here we go, unemotional, rational. You always play the part of the one and only rational one. And I'm the irrational, hysterical, hormone-crazy one because I have emotions. You sit back and speak from your big perspective, which means everything you say is true.
– I don't always do anything.
– The world is fucked by unemotional, rational men deciding shit. Politicians going to war, corporate heads deciding to wreck the environment. Cheney, Rumsfeld, very rational men.

What is the sentence in bold about?

PAST      or      PRESENT/FUTURE

ONE'S OWN ACTIONS      or      OTHER PEOPLE'S ACTIONS

What construction is used after 'would prefer'? _____

Video #2:

- Yes, I've already informed the SECNAV.
- You did?
- I figured it was the least I could do. Considering the bad news I had to give them earlier. Why? Would you prefer _____ it?
- No. That's fine.

What is the sentence in bold about?

PAST      or      PRESENT/FUTURE

ONE'S OWN ACTIONS      or      OTHER PEOPLE'S ACTIONS

What construction is used after 'would prefer'? _____

Video #3:

- Thanks for letting me stay here tonight, Nana.
- Oh, you're welcome here anytime, Michael. But I hate to think of that pretty little girl of yours fretting and worrying about you.
- I don't want to hurt her. I'm just afraid that we're too different.
- Well, different is good.
- Yeah, but she's got to have an opinion about everything. If she sees something wrong, she got to say something about it.
- And what would you prefer her _____ ? Sit back, smile, and pretend like everything's okay?
- That's what I do.
- And that's what you were doing before you met her. Sitting in that sad little apartment, 50 pounds heavier, pretending everything was okay.
- God, I was a mess.
- And if that woman had just shut up and left well enough alone, you'd still be a mess.

What is the sentence in bold about?

PAST      or      PRESENT/FUTURE

ONE'S OWN ACTIONS      or      OTHER PEOPLE'S ACTIONS

What construction is used after 'would prefer'? _____

Video #4:

- You saved my life. I'm grateful.
- I could not watch you die and do nothing.
- You saved Robin, too.
- That was incidental.
- Was it?
- Marian, I've been assuming that since Hood became an outlaw... that you've had nothing further to do with him. Was I wrong to assume that?
- No.
- Because if you were associating with an outlaw... the punishment would be more severe than house arrest. The punishment... would be death.
- Would you prefer me _____ you die?

What is the sentence in bold about?

PAST      or      PRESENT/FUTURE

ONE'S OWN ACTIONS      or      OTHER PEOPLE'S ACTIONS

What construction is used after 'would prefer'? _____