TRAVEL FORUM

A couple of years ago, my sister and I travelled to Amsterdam. Before we booked our trip, I got a new passport. When we went to the check-in desk, I got a big shock. They told me I couldn't fly because I brought my old passport by mistake. Luckily, we live near the airport and my dad was able to bring my new passport. I told my sister to go ahead. My dad brought it just in time, but I didn't have time to buy anything or get anything to eat. I had to run all the way to the gate, and I was the last person to get on the plane. Luckily for me, my sister bought me a sandwich and the bottle of perfume I wanted. Next time, I will check my passport properly.

Last summer, I visited my sister in Manchester. The flight was relaxing and I picked up my luggage quickly and got the bus to her house. It was only when I opened the suitcase that I saw it wasn't mine. I got the bus back to the airport and waiting by the baggage desk there was a young man with my suitcase. They were exactly the same. It was such good luck that he waited. We laughed about it and went for a coffee together. Now we are really good friends, and we have bright luggage tags on our cases, so it doesn't happen again.
