Diego's Big Dream

Diego is a very intelligent and loving boy. He always studies hard and dreams of becoming a scientist. Every night, he is discovering new things in his books. His sisters, Lor and Val, enjoy listening to his ideas, and they always support him.

One day, Diego is explaining a new science project to his sisters. "I am doing an experiment with plants," he says. Lor is drawing a picture of the plants, and Val is writing notes. They all work together like a great team.

At school, Diego sees a competition about inventions. He starts dreaming about winning it. Every afternoon, he is digging in his backyard, looking for materials. Sometimes, he is cutting pieces of wood to build his invention. His sisters help him with ideas and decorations.

The competition day arrives. Diego is feeling nervous but also excited. Many students are presenting their projects. Diego sees some are dancing to celebrate, while others are eating snacks. He takes a deep breath and explains his invention.

The judges love Diego's project! They say he is daring to think differently. Diego wins first place, and he is crying with happiness. Lor and Val hug him and say, "You deserve this!"

At home, their parents are driving back from work. When they arrive, they see Diego and his sisters celebrating. "We are so proud of you!" they say. The family enjoys a special dinner together.

That night, Diego is lying in bed, still feeling the excitement. He keeps dreaming about his future and knows that hard work and love will always help him succeed.
