Isaac Newton

Isaac Newton, one of the most brilliant minds in history, was born on January 4, 1643, in the small town of Woolsthorpe, England. As a child, he was rather quiet and didn't always fit in with his peers. Instead of jumping into games, young Isaac preferred to spend his time exploring the wonders of nature and experimenting with colors and light.

As Isaac grew older, he attended the University of Cambridge, where his passion for physics and science grew bigger. During his time at college, he studied deeper the works of great thinkers who came before him, like Galileo and Descartes. Once Newton observed an apple fell from a tree. This event sparked his thoughts about why objects fall to the ground, leading to the formulation of his famous law of universal gravitation. One legend says that the apple actually fell onto his head but there is no proof to this.

Isaac Newton also had a keen interest in mathematics, and he played a key role in developing mathematical analysis. His groundbreaking book, "Mathematical Principles Of Natural Philosophy", or simply "Principles", published in 1687, explained his laws of motion and universal gravitation, laying the foundation for modern physics.

Subject: Country life

... As you know, this summer I am spending holidays in the country in my grandparents' house. Actually, I have no friends here and sometimes I feel boring.

What activities can you offer me to do in the country? What are positive things about living in the country? Do you prefer spending time in the city or in the countryside?

Write back soon.

Best wishes,

Paul
