Sandy's Big Change

Sandy is a 15-year-old girl who lives in a small town. Every morning, she wakes up early and goes to school with her best friend, Stephany. Sandy is a smart girl, but she often feels nervous when she has to speak in class. She believes she is not good enough, so she usually stays quiet.

One Monday morning, Sandy arrives at school feeling very nervous. There is a big presentation in her English class. Stephany sits beside her and whispers, "You can do it, Sandy. Just try." But Sandy shakes her head.

Mr. Owen, the English teacher, calls Sandy's name. "It's your turn," he says. Sandy stands up and walks to the front of the class. Her hands shake as she holds her paper. She begins to speak, but her voice is very low.

Suddenly, Angie, another student, whispers loudly, "She's too scared to talk!" The class laughs, and Sandy feels her face burn with embarrassment. Tears fill her eyes, but Mr. Owen steps forward and says calmly, "Sandy, take a deep breath. You can do it."

Sandy closes her eyes, takes a deep breath, and begins again. This time, her voice is stronger. She explains her topic clearly and confidently. When she finishes, the class claps. Even Angie smiles a little.

After class, Stephany hugs Sandy. "You were amazing!" she says. "I guess I just needed to believe in myself," Sandy answers, smiling.

That evening, Sandy sits at home, feeling proud. She realizes that she can overcome her fears if she believes in herself. From that day on, Sandy becomes more confident. She answers questions in class and joins group projects. She even decides to try out for the school debate team.

"I can do it," Sandy thinks. And she knows it's true.
