Read the following passage about Colors and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 23 to 30.

Colors are one of the most exciting experiences in life. I love them, and they are just as important to me as emotions are. Have you ever wondered how the two are so intimately related?

Color directly affects your emotions. Color both reflects the current state of your emotions, and is something that you can use to improve or change your emotions. The color that you choose to wear either reflects your current state of being, or reflects the color or emotions that you need.

The colors that you wear affect you much more than they affect the people around you. Of course, they also affect anyone who comes in contact with you, but you are the one saturated with the color all day! I even choose items around me based on their color. In the morning, I choose my clothes based on the color or emotion that I need for the day. So you consciously use color to control the emotions that you are exposed to, which can help you to feel better.

Color, sound, and emotions are all vibration. Emotions are literally energy in motion; they are meant to move and flow. This is the reason that real feelings are the fastest way to get your energy in motion. Also, flowing energy is exactly what creates healthy cells in your body. So, the fastest way to be healthy is to be open to your real feelings. Alternately, the fastest way to create disease is to inhibit your emotions.

Question 23. Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

- A. Color, sound, and emotion are all forms of motion.
- B. Color, sound, and emotion are all related to health.
- C. Color, sound, and emotion all affect the cells of the body.

Read the following passage about Globalisation and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 40.

Globalisation has dramatically impacted cultures around the world, allowing for the exchange of traditions, ideas, and values. [I] As borders become less significant, people find it easier to access information about different cultures through travel, media, and the internet. [II] However, this increased interconnectedness has raised concerns about the preservation of cultural identity. [III] Many cultures now face the challenge of maintaining their unique customs while also integrating into a global community. [IV]

Despite these challenges, globalisation has also provided opportunities for cultures to share their heritage with a broader audience. For example, festivals celebrating traditional music, food, and art have become increasingly popular worldwide, showcasing the richness of different cultural identities. In this way, globalisation can serve as a means of cultural preservation rather than destruction.

Nonetheless, cultural homogenisation remains a significant issue. As Western media, fashion, and values dominate, smaller, less powerful cultures are at risk of being overshadowed. Local traditions, languages, and even culinary practices are sometimes abandoned in favour of global trends. This has led to debates about how to balance cultural integration with the preservation of local identities.

In response, many nations and organisations are taking active steps to protect cultural diversity. Efforts such as language revitalisation programs, government-funded festivals, and cultural education are being implemented to ensure that future generations retain a strong connection to their heritage. By promoting a balance between cultural exchange and identity preservation, globalisation can help foster a more diverse and inclusive world.

Question 31. Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. Efforts to protect cultural diversity are less successful than expected.
